

WEDDING CELEBRANT

Vanessa Butcher

A ceremony that is a little bit more personal

Your place. Your words. Your day.

“Love is composed of a single soul inhabiting two bodies.”

What is a celebrant?

A celebrant is someone who helps you celebrate any significant life event. Traditionally that means weddings, baby naming ceremonies and funerals ... but it can be anything you wish to celebrate!

Why use a celebrant?

Quite simply, it gives you choice!

Traditionally, weddings are held in a church with a minister, at the Registrar's office, or, more recently, at an approved venue where the Registrar comes out to you. All of these options are wonderfully suitable for many people and will continue to be a valid choice.

But if you want your ceremony to be a little bit more personal, and to choose a place that is special to you, then a celebrant may be the option for you.

CHOOSE A PLACE THAT IS SPECIAL TO YOU

The beach · a favourite woodland walk · your local pub · your garden!

Share the joy of finding the person with whom you wish to spend your life, surrounded by all your family and friends.

MAKING IT LEGAL

To fulfil the legal requirements of marriage, you would attend the Registrar's office. This is a very short appointment: you repeat two specific sentences and sign, with witnesses.

There does not need to be an exchange of vows or rings at the registrar. These can be saved for the ceremony at the place of your choosing, with everyone you love there to support you.

PRICING & CONSULTATION

Every celebration is different

Pricing is tailored to the needs of each couple, so that your ceremony is exactly what you want it to be.

Please reach out and get in touch to arrange a formal consultation: a relaxed sit-down to talk through your ideas and plans.

Sounds good?
